OCCASIONAL WIFE
By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER
Author of "Joretta," "Lipstick Girl," etc.

SYNOPSIS
Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful commercial artist, and Peter Anson, a struggling sculptor, meet in an art class and fall in love. She is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family, but she is not to share in their fortune when she comes of age. They are faced with the problem of "marriage or career" and Camilla does not want to tie Peter down when he has so much promise as a sculptor. At an art school dance, Gus Melson, Peter's roommate, who is jealous of Peter's success, takes Camilla out on the lawn to tell her something she should know about Peter. Gus tells Camilla Peter is a cheat, that he only wants her money, and that he, Gus, loves her himself. At that moment Peter appears on the scene and knocks Gus flat. On the way home from the party Camilla tells Peter they are going to do something about their problem.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XIV.

"We are going to be married, soon, Peter, darling," Camilla told him.

"Why—why, honey, we shouldn't dare to!" incredulous.

"Afraid, Peter?"

"For myself? No, of course not."

"For whom?"

"Why—for you! I couldn't take care of you."

"I shouldn't let you. I'll take care of myself—until you succeed."

"I couldn't let you do that," he protested with finality.

"Why couldn't you, Peter? I'll have to do that, anyway, whether I am your wife or not. Why can't I be your wife, too?"

"My wife? Be repeated, with awe."

"You would—take that chance, dear, before I have proved to you that I can do anything worth while?"

"To take bigger chances than that to have you and your love. Why not? Where is the risk?"

"Well—suppose I failed, after all? Suppose I never really amount to much?"

"You would still be you," gently.

"Yes, I suppose."

"Well, Peter, it's you I love and want. Nothing else makes a lot of difference to me, except that I want for you everything that you want to be, for your sake as much as mine."

"Sweetheart!" he gave her a doubtful demonstration of his appreciation.

"What a girl!" he exclaimed and laughed tremulously. She clung to him, weak with emotion and reluctant to lose the sweetest creature with which she filled her. She was part of the night, its beauty and silence and fragrance.

grace, there in his arms with his lips upon hers.

"Don't let me go!" she whispered. "I wish I needn't—ever!" vehemently.

"Then why don't you want to marry me now?"

"Want to? If I only dared!"

"Then you shall. And it won't make a bit of difference to either of us, financially. We shall live just as we have planned before we met."

"But I can't even provide you a decent place to live," helplessly.

"You won't need to. I just told you that we'll live exactly as we had planned before, except that we shall belong to each other."

"You mean—not even live together?"

"That would be fatal to your work, Peter, and the last thing we should think of doing. I shouldn't consider living with you until you are established. You must think of taking on the responsibilities of a home until then. But that need not keep us from finding a little happiness."

"That isn't the way it should be," he objected.

"You are so stubborn, darling," she sighed. "Not the way it should be, but better than nothing, isn't it? Better—than waiting for years—and years—"

"You almost convince me," he drew her close again, eagerly. "Are you sure you would regret it? I can't tell you how much it would mean to me!"

"You needn't, because I know. But I'll marry you, Peter, only on my terms—that you are to assume no responsibilities whatever, and that we shall live apart until you can afford to take care of me. It is your work I am thinking of, Peter."

"More than me?"

"Of course not. After us. But it means everything to us, doesn't it?"

"That's right."

"Suppose we had to wait five years—ten to have each other—for love?"

"With one long embrace, she gave him her first voluntary kiss before she continued, "just because of a few stupid dollars that we should need, to live together in the regular way that convention follows."

"I know. I suppose it would be impossible, anyway," he admitted. "We are not children. You are almost twenty-one, and I am twenty-two, Camilla. We should know what we want to do. But if you insist upon taking care of yourself, why not combine like other fifty-fifty marriages?"

"Too many of those fall, Peter. No, if we marry, our problem requires an individual solution. When a girl tries to be a business woman, a wife and a housekeeper, she almost always fails in one of the three, and that one is usually in being a wife. It would be even worse for a man like you."

"In the first place, you would work alone and have more time to brood over trifles. You are sensitive and would feel your irresponsibility more than the average man. If we lived together, your studio would have to be the home. You would have to do my office-hour job and neglected anything, you would feel that you should do the work because your work tied you to no definite hours. More and more, you would become the mat at home. The loss of your freedom and the worry for your tired working wife. No, Peter, it never would do for us to live together until you have made good."

"How can you be in love and yet so practical?" he wondered with tender amusement.

"That's not being as practical as it sounds," she laughed softly. "Most of all, I want to keep the romance of our marriage. Peter. We can just go on being lovers until the end of time. There's nothing that about our waiting for years and years to marry. Do you remember what you said that first night we talked together, about wanting a thing so intensely and so long that finally when you could have it, you didn't want it?"

"You're not a bit like Romeo, are you? You know he said that parting is such sweet pleasure."

"What did he know about it? He when they are not crowded with never parted from you."

She laughed happily and they kissed again. Presently, she said slowly, "There's another thing about our waiting for years and years to marry. Do you remember what you said that first night we talked together, about wanting a thing so intensely and so long that finally when you could have it, you didn't want it?"

"Oh, sure, even lots of people who marry, change their minds about each other afterward. But not us."

"But that isn't what I mean, dear. I don't think we ever could do that if we have each other and share everything as we go along. We shall develop together then. But if we have to live on hope alone and go our separate ways, we may drift apart in our interests—well, and find that we do not want each other wanted. There's a phrase running in my mind that someone wrote. The sickening pang of hope deferred? Doesn't that sound ominous?"

"Whatever it is, we are going to take no chances with it," Peter declared.

"But, may," she held him off suddenly. "I'm doing all the arguing about this. It sounds as if I were trying to make you marry me against your will."

"Darling, you know that isn't true. You are only convincing me that you are willing to take a bigger chance upon me than I. I have just right to ask you. Yet I am selfish enough to ask you. Even though I love you better than anything in life," he told her tenderly.

"Because you love me better than anything in life," she corrected him. (To Be Continued.)

Must Live On Land

French Women Cannot Make Residence On Ocean Liner

The French government has decided that an ocean liner cannot become a permanent residence. In spite of the fact that an elderly woman insisted she wanted to stay on the steamer and not leave it at any port.

Mme. Vischer d'Assonville, a 61-year-old widow, who recently made her first voyage across the ocean, decided that she felt happiest with the sea always about her. So when the vessel docked at Le Havre she calmly sat among her baggage in her state-room and said she wasn't leaving.

No, not this trip, nor the trip after, nor any trip until she died.

The skipper said he wasn't able to decide on such a question. The woman pointed out to him with logic that her living expenses were less aboard steamer than on land. She saved money.

On the captain's insistence, Mme. d'Assonville was taken to discuss the matter with French officials on shore. They unearthed a law requiring incoming transatlantic passengers to disembark at the arrival port.

"Until the law is changed," they said, Mme. d'Assonville will have to be content with keeping a permanent domicile on terra firma.

Same Sort Of People

Want Certain Things Put In Paper And Others Kept Out

The extraordinary thing—which is almost the most ordinary thing in a newspaper—is that it is the same sort of people who commonly want to get certain things into the paper who also want to keep certain other things out. The mark of the species is that the things they want to keep out are the things they are best qualified to handle.

By means by the most honest and intelligent definition, and the things they want to get in are not. In both instances they assume to be censors; in both instances they can never be persuaded—and very often they are quite definite that their censorship in the long run is an utterly futile and self-defeating thing.—Vancouver Province.

Mail Stolen From Liner

Three Registered Sacks Disappeared Between New York And Plymouth

The three sacks of registered mail, said to contain several thousand dollars worth of negotiable bonds and other securities, were stolen while the new United States liner "Manhattan" was on high seas federal authorities advised that the loss occurred when the liner, after leaving New York September 13, arrived at Plymouth, England, on September 18. The missing sacks were part of a shipment of 190 sacks. Those stolen were consigned to England, Holland and Poland.

Form Old Machinery Trust

English Company Trying To Protect Lancashire Textile Mills

To stave off competition from abroad a trust has been formed in England to buy up discharging mills that have had to close down temporarily. The purpose is to prevent the machinery from getting into the hands of brokers and being sold for absurdly small sums to foreign manufacturers who will use it as much the easier to compete with the textile mills of Lancashire. One case is cited of nearly new machines sold in Japan for one-tenth of their original cost.

Scottish Troops Abroad

While the Scotch Scottish, the Windsor Kitties, were at the Chicago's World's Fair one Chicago paper termed them the "Royal Canadian Guard" and the Tribune stated that the colonel had been specially sent from Buckingham Palace to represent King George. Runs Navigation School

Caplain At St. John Transmits Knowledge To Young Sailors

Looking through the window of his office in the customs building, high above St. John harbor, Captain Richard Pollock watches incoming ships manned and commanded by former students of his little navigation school.

Fifteen years ago Captain Pollock left a sanatorium west where he had been confined by serious illness and noticed an advertisement for a navigation instructor at St. John, N.B. He applied for and obtained the position.

Since then he has instructed hundreds of young men eager to sail on the modern ships of commerce. Some students have gone from distant Canadian points in order to receive instruction from the captain.

The school has two rooms, one main section where aspirants for a master's certificate pore over problems in trigonometry and astronomy, and another for the captain's salty looking room with sextants, maps and other instruments of the navigator's art.

Captain Pollock went to sea at the age of sixteen, sailing from Greenock, Scotland. Now he gives his knowledge of navigation to younger and stronger men anxious to follow the ocean trails.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

THE OLD ASSURANCE

Till winter's chill
White fingers still
The bloom and song of earth,
No heart can guess
The old assurance
Of summer's lyric mirth.

Until love goes
Nobody knows
What life it gave the says,
What charm it lent,
What bliss content
It shed on all life's ways.

Yet, sweet though soon
The flowers of June
In fragrant dust must lie,
Cling close, keep near
And never fear
Our rose of love can die.

A Spring Balance Of Quartz Glass

Can Be Melted Into The Hottest Of Flames

Quartz is one of the most difficult to melt of all materials. It softens and forms a glass only in the hottest of flames. Yet it is used to make the spiral springs used as delicate balances in certain laboratory research. Such quartz spiral balances are being used at the Forest Products Laboratories of Canada, Department of the Interior, by workers in the Pulp and Paper Division, Montreal, for the investigation of the relationship between water and paper-making pulps.

The quartz is melted in a flame of oxygen and acetylene and drawn into long threads about the thickness of a hair. By the aid of a somewhat less intense flame, these threads are coiled into delicate springs about half an inch in diameter. Enclosed in glass apparatus from which air is removed, they make possible the weighing to extreme accuracy of small samples of pulp.

The extension of the quartz spring, read by a small telescope to an accuracy of a thousandth of an inch, indicates the weight of the sample suspended on it.

Launching Hunt For Fortune Of Castaway

Messages In Bottle Picked Up At Sea Afford Only Clue

Two messages and a map in a bottle picked up on a lonely beach on the coast of Mexico have brought George F. Bradley to Washington to organize an expedition to seek for buried treasure.

The messages, tell of a Robinson Crusoe castaway; Chinese pirates; shipwreck; escape with the treasure; the wait for death on a South Pacific isle.

So far, Bradley has found four people who are willing to take a chance on there being a buried loot on the other side of the world and have signed up under Bradley as an expedition.

The first message, dated August 18, 1897, reads:

"To whoever finds this which I am about to cast into the sea—help—I am cast away on an island whose latitude is" (deleted by Bradley) "and longitude" (deleted by Bradley).

"For three years I have been a prisoner of Chinese pirates, who have raided several pearlers and other vessels and have accumulated a vast amount of wealth, which I have saved from the wreck and buried under a rock on the south end of the island under a cross, over $40,000 worth of gold and silver coins and a stone jug over half full of pearls. Eleven perfect black pearls of immense size and 143 others that are over one-half inch in diameter. The rest are smaller."

"I am all alone and cannot live much longer. So I only ask the finder to give one of the black pearls and $10,000 of the money to my little daughter, Nellie Farley, who lives there with a Mrs. Susan McCarthy, in Stockton, Cal. Find her, please, and the rest is yours, and may God bless you."

"JAMES FARLEY.

"Aug. 18, 1897."

The second letter, with a map reads:

"There is no water on this island, which is very small, and I have no hope for myself, but please help my little girl when you get what I have hidden under the rock."

"Many other valuable things are buried nearby. There are letters with the money that will tell you all."

"Thank God my sufferings are over."

Bradley says he has had the writing tested by a chemist in the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, Pa., who found it to be the juice of a tropical tree.

Wales Wants Canadian Cattle

Fortnightly Service Of Cargoes To Cardiff Is Advocated

A determined attempt is being made to revive Cardiff's import trade in Canadian cattle and to secure a regular fortnightly service of cargoes into the port.

During June a consignment of 540 beasts from Ontario and Saskatchewan arrived, and most of them were sold by private treaty. Donald Munro of Montreal, who handled the business, said that Cardiff was finely situated to deal with this traffic and act as distributing centre not only for South Wales, but also for the Midlands and the south and west of England.

At present the only extensive imports of cattle from Canada are those into Glasgow and Birkenhead. If the new venture succeeds, the ships bringing the cattle will be loaded with South Wales products for the Canadian market.

Describes New Discovery

Oil Is Almost Pure Vitamin "A" States Its Maker

A new, pale yellow oil, 9,200 times more potent than ordinary cod liver oil, was described by the Ohio-Chilean section of the Chemical Society.

"The oil is almost pure vitamin 'A,'" said its maker, Prof. Harry N. Holmes, of Oberlin University. It represents America's stake in an international scientific race to be first with isolation of vitamin "A," the disease-resistance builder.

At the university of Zurich, Dr. Karrer has produced a similar oil 10,000 times as powerful as cod liver oil; while three Englishmen have reached vitamin "A" concentrations in animal oils 6,500 times and 500 times stronger than the fish oil.

Professor Holmes gets his near-vitamin "A" from halibut liver oil.

Quick Relief Now From Neuralgia

Real ASPIRIN Starts Taking Hold in Few Minutes

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia ... the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which an Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, is the story. As Aspirin Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to do its work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, be on guard against substitutes. To be sure you get ASPIRIN, the quick relief, be sure the name Buyer in the form of a cross is on every tablet of Aspirin.

Why ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop an Aspirin Tablet in a glass of water. Watch it disintegrate. Note it is in this glass it does its work fastest. Hence its effectiveness.

"COLLEGE HUMOR" WILL SHOW AT THE AVALON THIS WEEK
 "College Humor," Paramount's hilarious words-and-music version of college life as it ought to be played at the Avalon this week.
 "College Humor" boasts an all-star cast, a fast-moving story, a topnotch chorus, and music that already has proved successful on radio and dance programs.

In its cast are Bing Crosby, Richard Arlen, Mary Carlisle, Jack Oakie, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Lona Andre, Mary Kornman. The Ox-Road Co-Eds, a chorus of stunning youngsters, provide the dancing. Its music—"Learn to Croon," "Moonstruck," and "The Old Ox Road," its three hit tunes—was written by Sam Coslow and Arthur Johnston.
 "College Humor" is the story of a campus at which reputations are low, is the boudoir; where co-eds learn the facts of life more readily than mathematics or Science.

Bing Crosby is cast as a young intruder, Arlen and Oakie are football heroes, each in his own fashion. George Burns and Gracie Allen are college-widow and college-widower, in their own particular styles. Mary Carlisle, Lona Andre and Mary Kornman are among the co-eds who make life difficult for the boys.

Show starts Thursday and Friday at 8:15; Saturday 7:30 and 9:30. Coming: Marlene Dietrich in "Song of Songs," Nov. 16, 17 and 18. "Soldiers of the King," Mon., Tues., Wed., Nov. 20, 21 and 22. Zane Grey's "Man of the Forest" and "Wild Girl," Nov. 23, 24 and 25.

"SOLDIERS OF THE KING"
 To Show At Avalon Theatre
 November 20, 21 and 22

The I.O.O.F. announces an early showing of "Soldiers of the King" in which Cicely Courtneidge, England's wonderful queen of comedy and Edward Everett-Horton, Hollywood's leading exponent of light comedy are co-starred. "Soldiers of the King" is being hailed both in Canada and England as the funniest comedy burlesque ever produced. The engagement at the Avalon will be one of the earliest Canadian openings.

Followers of Jack Hurbert, the peerless screen comedian of "Sunshine Suite" and "Jack's the Boy" will be interested to know that Cicely Courtneidge is Mrs. Jack Hurbert in private life. Jack Hurbert wrote the screen story of "Soldiers of the King" in which his wife, Cicely Courtneidge, is achieving such a sensational success. Mr. and Mrs. Hurbert were co-starred in "Jack's the Boy," recently. The question of whether Jack Hurbert is as funny as his wife, or vice

Stanley Baldwin Gives An Insight Into The National Character Of The British People

Mr. Stanley Baldwin is one of the broadest in a series of talks on "National Character." He has himself in a marked degree the characteristics commonly ascribed to the English. He ought to be able to speak with authority. It is not necessary to follow him in his journey from Britain under the Romans. What is the English character now? No discovery about it is to be expected. Who could stomach an Englishman that didn't grumble? Mr. Baldwin grumbles every day, but "I do not worry and I keep cheerful." So do the English people. And they are "always serene in times of difficulty." That is a trait to be proud of. The English have had their senseless panics and scares, but Mr. Baldwin is justified in saying that "we have staying power; we are not rattled."

When one remembers the years of unemployment and high taxes, one is forced to believe that there must have been a good deal more worrying than Mr. Baldwin takes into account. Still from "British phlegm," or whatever cause, the English are fine lads to stand with their backs against the wall. While more emotional than is generally believed, their cultivation of the art of repression makes a brave show in days of disaster or of doubt—perhaps still more trying.

English humor and laughter are "stock" characteristics. In Mr. Baldwin's view, over the humorless Englishman has been and may be yet such a figure. "Kindness, sympathy, with the under-dog, love of home" are other distinctive English qualities. It may be travelling out of the record to say that they are also American, or that the English were long able to hide their sympathy with the Irish. The strong individuality of the Englishman is familiar. He likes to develop it. Mr. Baldwin tells us, in this country it may seem to be somewhat in a decline. Individualists as they are, the English know how to co-operate nationally. Americans are now manifesting the same faculty. Our old friend, "ordered liberty," is a well known English possession. Many Englishmen, as many Americans in their own case, are often inclined to think that they are getting too little liberty and too many orders. But let us hear Mr. Baldwin and share his hope.

With our partnership, with our love of ordered freedom, with our respect for law, with our respect for the individual and our talent for combining in service, indeed, the only strength and in our weakness, I believe, from my heart that our people are fitted to pass through whatever trials may be before us, and to emerge, if they are true to their own best traditions, a greater people than they were than they were in the past.

So may it be with Americans, though "respect for law" can hardly be included among their conspicuous virtues.—New York Times.

Harbors and Isolation

Countries Just Now Have Little Use For Transoceanic Facilities

At Cherbourg it would appear that the new harbor improvements are not yet completed. The authorities would therefore seem to be a bit premature in worrying about the time when steamship companies continue to make use of tenders instead of coming alongside the docks. It is now stated that some dredging remains to be done on the new channel.

A great new port at Cherbourg, extensive improvements at Southampton and pressure for longer piers at our own North River would at first sight be quite out of the current of the times so to speak. Why improve transoceanic facilities when all the nations are going Diogenes, each seeking prosperity and happiness in its own tub?

New docks and new giant liners may be folly, or may be the self-assertion of a heady lust for the vagaries of the times. There are still people willing to gamble on the chance that the nations may want to resume doing business with each other and visiting each other.—New York Times.

Taking No Chances

In the early days of the war the officer in charge of a British station in the heart of Africa received the following wireless message from his superior officer: "War declared; arrest all enemy aliens in your district."

With commendable promptness, the superior officer received this reply: "Have arrested seven Germans, three Belgians, two Frenchmen, four Italians, one Australian, and an American. Please say with whom we are at war."

Getting It Right

A couple recently called at a rectory to put up their names of marriage. The bridegroom-elect questioned the answers to the various questions as to names, ages, and so forth, but when asked if his bride-to-be was a spinster, he replied: "No; she is an umbrella maker."

Genoa, home town of Columbus, is to have its first 20-story skyscraper.

Disagrees With "Food Faddists"

Eat What You Like In Moderation Says Old Doctor

Eat what you fancy. This is the advice of a famous English physician, Sir James Crichton-Brown, and it was given after he had eaten an eight-course dinner given by the Institute of Certified Grocers at which he was a speaker. He is 98 years of age. Sir James expressed strong disagreement with what he called "food faddists" and said he always ate what he liked and advised his patients to do the same—but in moderation. "About food the most ardent and fantastic nonsense is talked and written," Sir James said.

"Every kind of food is alternately lauded as life-saving and denounced as a poison. The faddists and the cranks are never at rest." The man with a good appetite, a clean palate and common sense may go on confidently consuming the varied foods to which he has been accustomed without risk, he said.

Britain's New Problem

Dole Is Attracting Many Failures Back To Homeland

For thirty years Britain has sent abroad to seek their fortunes some 200,000 emigrants yearly. This has added the old country as well as the virtue and enterprising migrants to other lands. There were failures, most of whom were there before they left their homeland. However, the tide has turned. For the first time no British subjects have left the homeland and 4,000 have gone back to the mother country. These constitute a problem there for the dose attracts some failures back voluntarily and some are deportees, undesirable anywhere. With mouths to feed at home and entering migrants to the land, giving Britain some concern.—Brandon Sun.

Hitler's Policy Hurts Germany's Culinary Trade

British Boycott Has Made Sheffield Butcher

When Herr Hitler turned British sympathies against him overnight by his inane anti-Jew-baiting campaign, he little reckoned what reactions would ensue. One of them has taken the unpleasant form of a British boycott of German goods. The direct result of which the great culinary city of Sheffield is experiencing a boom it had not known since pre-war days. Cheap cutlery used to be a specialty of German firms who flooded the British market with inferior goods against which the Sheffield men either would not or could not compete, the Sheffield factories being mainly equipped for high quality products only. The Germans deliberately went after the cheap market and used their field with waddy inferior goods which would not or could not compete, the Sheffield factories being mainly equipped for high quality products only.

Since then Sheffield has learned to make the cheaper grade of goods without losing her reputation for the high-class goods. Now the anti-German boycott affords an opportunity for her to secure to herself a large share of a market hitherto held exclusively by German firms. The "Buy British" slogan has received an unexpected and vigorous impetus. It is quite conceivable that this may expand until it affects the cheap produce of other foreign nations as well. The net result will all bring credit to the British mill. And there is a lesson in this that we in Canada may as well take to ourselves. "Buy Canadian" is a first-rate slogan for us, when it comes to competition from outside the Empire.—Montreal Star.

Suggests Irrigation Plan

Would Remedy Drought Conditions In West Opinion Of Montreal Man

Farming problems engaged the attention of a session of the eighth annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce held at Ottawa with all the speakers presenting pictures of the distressed condition of agriculture and advancing suggestions for ameliorating that condition. In general, however, the consensus of the various papers read indicated that government intervention in the farming industry was unnecessary beyond the setting up of some machinery of marketing.

That engineering skill could remedy drought conditions in Western Canada by installing irrigation works in the dried out area was the opinion of R. O. Sweeney, of Montreal. He suggested that the government, instead of pursuing its present relief policy exclusively, could profitably spend $400,000,000 to be spread over a period of ten years, in such remedial undertakings.

The tremendous losses sustained by the prairie farmers since 1928, amounting on an average to more than $200,000,000 per annum in the west, was emphasized by W. C. Miller, of Regina. This was the expansion of the west's condition and was the reason why western farmers were unable to pay their mortgages or offer a better market for eastern manufactured products.

Prince's Right Hand Man

General Trotter Was Formerly Gentleman Usher To King

The Royal family are cutting down their travelling entourage, and the Prince of Wales had only one member of his usual staff with him on holiday at Biarritz. General Gerald Trotter, who has been his Groom-in-Waiting for some years. He was Gentleman Usher to the King before he became the right hand man of His Royal Highness. General Trotter is now 62, and was a midshipman on H.M.S. Britannia before he joined the Royal Scots. It was as an officer in the Grenadier Guards, however, that he saw most of his active service. He lost his left arm during the European War.

Happy Western City

Edmonton Has Most Satisfactory Way Of Taking Crime

From the point of view of the newspapers (in popular conception, at least) Edmonton is a poor community. It discourages gun-toting bandits by arresting them before they have time to start shooting. It ruins the majority of criminal mystery stories by removing the mystification without fuss or delay. It gives the reporters a minimum of "breaks" and the doors of crime even less. If one has a yearning for sensational law-breaking, the most read of it under a foreign date-line—which is the most satisfactory way of taking one's crime.—Edmonton Journal.

Old Servant Retires

Mrs. Harriet Winn, oldest woman servant at Buckingham Palace, has retired as she has reached the age limit of 70. She was received by the Queen, who presented her with a souvenir of her years' service, during three reigns. After being housemaid at the palace for many years Miss Winn ended in charge of the linen room.

Just Matter Of Practice

Nothing Phenomenal About Guessing Weights Says Expert

People who try to fool weight guessers are trying to accomplish a difficult feat, according to Joseph Ogens, who has been guessing people's weight at Nantasket and Old Orchard for 20 years or more.

There's nothing phenomenal about guessing weights, this expert declares. "The average person could do it after some practice—say guessing on about four or five thousand people."

Ogens himself has taken the left of about a million people while he has been in the business. He thinks no one probably has come in contact with so many people—feeling of their muscles and their stomachs looking them over and talking to them. He got into the business at Nantasket when he was running a different kind of guess and used to help out as weight guesser when the latter went to supper. While watching the stand, he thought he might as well guess a few, and he also into the profession that way, later going into a partnership with the man.—Boston Transcript.

Not Only The President

List Of Qualifications Go For Prime Minister Too

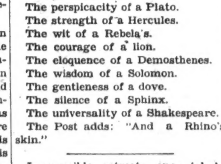

Grenville Kleiser, writing in New York Evening Post says: "Sir—To be a satisfactory President of the United States, a man must possess many qualifications. Of these I suggest the following: The patience of a Job. The perspicacity of a Plato. The strength of a Hercules. The wit of a Rebekah. The courage of a lion. The eloquence of a Demosthenes. The wisdom of a Solomon. The gentleness of a dove. The silence of a Sphinx. The universality of a Shakespeare. The post adds: "And a Rhino's skin."

Inaccessible retreats once inhabited by the "holiest of monks" have been unearthed in the desert and some ten miles from the Wadi Natrun, Egypt.

London has just appointed its first woman park-keepers.

The man with the sharpest wit is the man with the fewest friends.

FUNERAL PYRE OF MRS. BESANT

Scene at Adyar, Madras, India, during the celebration of the last rites for Mrs. Besant, leader of the world's theosophists. In accordance with Mrs. Besant's last wishes, her body was placed on a funeral pyre and burned according to the rites of the people among whom she had lived for so many years.

The Newspaper Habit

People Only Become Daily Readers Half Century Ago

At Yarmouth, England, on Sept. 14, 1883, two small boys, brothers, called at the office of the local evening journal and asked for a job selling papers. They were taken on, and that night sold six dozen each, and earned 1s. apiece. One of these brothers is the present Mayor of Yarmouth. The other is Alderman Ernest James Middleton, J.P., who was Mayor in 1922 and again in 1926. He is the head of a company with many branches engaged in the wholesale newspaper trade. In an interview on his fifty years in the newspaper trade, Alderman E. J. Middleton said that when he began his career less than half the inhabitants could read, but the Board Schools were beginning their good work, and fathers took home the evening paper for their better educated children to read the news to them after tea. London papers were only taken by bookkeepers and stationers to order, and a system was in vogue for lending out the Times for so long at 1d. per hirer. Buying a paper daily was then considered a luxury. It was Queen Victoria's jubilee in 1887, which caused people to become daily paper readers, national interest was keen, and persons who had begun to "taste" a paper formed the habit. The Boer War gave a great fillip to the new custom.—London Times.

Awarded Bronze Medal

Royal Canadian Humane Society Recognizes Many Acts Of Bravery

Award of the Royal Canadian Humane Society's bronze medal for life-saving to Wong Kok Ling, of Field, B.C., is announced, with a similar honor for Fred Scott Thomson, of Maclean, Sask.

The Field Chinese rushed to the Ocean Falls dock on July 21 to learn from Mrs. Marsh that her son Edward had fallen in the water. The first rescue workers on the scene were ineffective and Ling jumped in, bringing up the lad on his first attempt. The water was 20 feet deep and icy cold.

Mr. Thomson received the award for the successful rescue of Miss Jessie Mackay and Miss Jean Elliott from drowning at Dilbury Lake, June 12, when they fell into a stream from a sandy ledge in shallow water.

Among recipients of the society's parchment certificates are H. Fjeldstad, Arbrog, Man.; W. J. Wood, Teulon, Man.; Kenneth Quaglini, Victoria, B.C.; Irene McKenzie, Saratoga; Lawrence Ferrell and Thomas Coulson, Maloy, Alberta; Norman Willington, of West Vancouver, and William Marsh, of West Selkirk, Man.

To Make Leather Supple

Shoes Treated With Castor Oil Are Made Softer

It is well known that castor oil is excellent treatment for all sorts of shoes that need to become more supple. It sinks in without doing the least damage, and polish may be put on the top of it to advantage. The hardest pair of country shoes become tamed by this means and all the better for the many reptile skins now in use. These are hard and some of them have unpleasantly astringent qualities. The castor oil softens them and makes them far more supple without damaging them at all. One more instance of skin or leather which can be treated advantageously by means of a home remedy from the medicine chest. Take the case of gloves in which there is defective leather. To get a split often means a new one, but if the sewn-up split is firmly backed by a piece of sticking plaster it will often hold as well as the rest of the glove, giving it a new lease of life, which is especially valuable in the expensive gloves now worn.

Canada has about 350 million acres of land suitable for farming purposes, and of this total 163 and one-half millions are in occupied farms, of which nearly 88 million acres are improved land.

Great Britain Has Attained The Strongest Financial Position Of Any Country In The World

A Bumper Apple Crop

Commercial Yield Is Estimated At 4,508,000 Barrels

A bumper crop of apples is being harvested in Canada this year. The total commercial yield for 1933 is placed at 4,508,000 barrels, an increase of 121,000 barrels over the 1932 production.

Of this year's commercial crop the Province of Nova Scotia will account for 1,846,000 barrels; British Columbia, 1,394,000 barrels; Ontario, 1,094,000 barrels; Quebec, 854,000 barrels; and New Brunswick, 400,000 barrels. This year's yield in Nova Scotia is nearly 792,000 barrels more than in 1932. In Ontario the increase is 146,000 barrels compared with last year. In British Columbia the 1933 crop is less than in the previous year.

The total yield of pears this year will be 465,000 bushels, about the same as in 1932. Peaches will, it is estimated, reach 825,000 bushels, about 80,000 bushels below the 1932 production. Plums and prunes will yield 218,000 bushels, a decrease of 64,000 bushels. The total production of grapes is estimated at 44,681,000 pounds or 8,936,000 pounds below the yield in 1932.

Practically all the pears, peaches, plums and grapes grown in Canada for the commercial market come from the provinces of Ontario and British Columbia.

Complexity Of Rural Life

Farm Education Should Include Economic Problems

Modern agricultural education will fail to reach its full scope until it extends beyond the mere teaching of improved methods in production, according to Dean George Godfrey of the agriculture division at Iowa State College.

"Farming education should not only teach how to grow a bushel of corn, or how best to raise a hog, but also how to market them to best advantage and what to do about it after the crop is marketed," Godfrey said.

When agricultural education was in its infancy the natural course was to pursue improved production methods, he explained. Production now is no longer paramount to the social and economic problems of agricultural life, he asserted.

One of the chief developments needed in agricultural courses of the modern type, he believes, is the showing students "how to get the most out of living." Godfrey declared.

The complexity of rural living has increased along with the complexity of urban life, he believes. He would have agricultural education train men and women to take their place without difficulty in this altered rural society.

Bothered By Pronunciation

Ohio Chief Of Horticulture Tells How To Say "Gladiolus"

The chief of the Ohio Department of Horticulture is somewhat disturbed by the continued refusal of people generally to say "glad-EEE-o-lus" when speaking of the iridescent sword lily. He has so much concern, perhaps with the correct pronunciation of the four sterns found between the manubrium and the ziphoid appendage. But he insists that G. gloriosus, G. cardinalis, G. phalaenopsis, and similar species should not be spoken of with the accent on the first syllable, as is the case with the butomus umbellatus. Nor, to his precisionist ear, is the common "glad-EEE-o-lus" acceptable.

It's "glad-EEE-o-lus" with him, which is too bad in a way, because it makes him unhappy.

For our part, we call 'em "glads" and let it go at that.—Detroit Free Press.

Clings To Old Home

Aged Woman Remains In House Which Is Being Wrecked

World's End Passage is being demolished, but old Mrs. Kent refuses to quit.

World's End Passage is being demolished by the City of London, but old Mrs. Kent, who has lived in the house since 1847, is a 74-year-old, partially paralyzed tenant whose one room gradually is being pulled down around her.

The old lady steadfastly has declined the alternative accommodation offered her by the local authorities. It takes her five hours to shuffle to the post-office, 250 yards away, to collect her old-age pension.

Bun Against Turkish Dress

As the result of a ban on women's aprons placed by authorities of Palati, in Northern Turkey, local seamstresses are busy making more modern dresses. A voluminous form of apron skirt has been worn for centuries by the women of Palati as part of their regular costumes, but the decree says that it shall never be used again.

England will import more than one-third of its fruit this year from other empire countries.

Further cheering trade reports came from different quarters in London, England, on the heels of the declaration by Walter Rucman, president of the Board of Trade, that Britain has attained the strongest financial position of any country in the world.

September trade figures showed an increase of 68,000,000 in exports over last year, while the greater part of a £2,500,000 increase in imports was in raw materials.

Further production of steel ingots and castings increased by 238,700 tons over the same month last year. Prince George, opening the motor show at the Olympic, pointed to an increase of 27 per cent. in domestic production and of 68 per cent. in motor production for foreign trade.

Coincidentally evidence of the strength of the London market, a £13,000,000 conversion loan for South Africa in 3 1/2 per cent. bonds was snapped up immediately, the lists being closed within five minutes. This duplicated the experience with Canadian, Australian, British and New Zealand loans in the last few weeks.

Trade pact negotiations are to be opened shortly with Uruguay, Poland, Spain and Italy, Mr. Rucman announced. Presumably these will be modelled along the pacts already concluded. This year, notably with Argentina and Scandinavian countries.

While a prominent feature of the pacts negotiated with the Scandinavian countries was an undertaking to buy more British coal, Mr. Rucman said British cotton would be given chief attention next. "We are going to make a big effort to place that vastly important industry on a satisfactory basis," he said. "After that we shall turn our attention to steel."

Buffalo In Antipodes

Canadian Buffalo From Walmeright Become Acclimated In Australia

The buffalo which were donated by the National Parks Service of the Canadian Department of the Interior to the South Australian Zoological and Acclimatization Society have had to adapt themselves to a reversal of the seasons. In November, 1929, three buffalo, two cows and one bull, were shipped by the National Parks of Canada from Buffalo, N.D., to Adelaide, Australia. Precautions were taken for the health of the animals on the journey and after a trip of some ten thousand miles, they arrived at their destination in splendid condition.

The animals were given a great reception, but they were not properly roared for the occasion because they arrived in January, 1930, one of Australia's hottest months, and were unable at the moment to discuss their heavy Canadian winter coats. Within six months, however, they had adapted themselves to the reversed climatic conditions, and in a letter of June 16, 1933, (midwinter), from the Director of the South Australian Zoological Gardens, it is stated that the animals were in their winter coats, were looking very well, and that so far they had reared one calf, which is now about twelve months old. The zoo promises to grow into a very fine bull.

Origin Of Corn

Thought Cultivation Was First Started In Central America

Where or when corn was first cultivated, or from what wild plant it developed, is not definitely known. It is generally assumed that its cultivation started in Central America and spread north and south. It has never been found wild. The wheat and rye are said to have built large store-rooms for it to prevent famine in case of crop failure.

It was grown as far north as the St. Lawrence Valley when the first explorers arrived there. When Columbus landed in the West Indies he was presented with a kind of bread made from a grain the natives called "Maiz."

From this word is derived the English word "maize," under which name the plant is known in Europe.

Planned Glorios

Grave, the 10-year-old

ed by music critics of Melbourne and Adelaide, Australia, to be a budding Mozart, wears padded gloves much of the time when not at the piano. His small hands have been insured for $5,000. In the Melbourne auditorium recently he gave eight concerts, each time to packed houses, and the critics say his technique is almost perfect.

Claims Glider Record

What is claimed by the Moscow press as a world record in stunt flying in a glider was achieved by Pilot P. Stepanchenko at Khabarovsk, Crimée, where a glider school functions. Stepanchenko made 184 somersaults, 13 tailspins and a series of other trick manoeuvres in a glider during a single flight.
